

Phoenix Art Museum: Photography Policy
Updated, Feb. 2009

We encourage visitors to take photographs in the Museum for their personal enjoyment. To protect the objects being photographed, the copyright privileges of their creators, and the safety of our visitors, however, there are certain restrictions on taking photographs in the Museum.

Flashes and tripods, as well as movie and video cameras are prohibited. Works on loan to the Museum or in exhibitions in the Featured Exhibition galleries may not be photographed. A work on loan to the Museum may be identified by the "L-number" on its accompanying label next to the work of art (for example L1.2001). Some exhibitions may have special photography policies.

Still photography of the permanent collection, taken in existing light and without flash, is permitted on the condition that the photographs are solely for personal, non-commercial use.

Photographs may not be published, sold, reproduced, transferred, distributed or otherwise commercially exploited in any manner whatsoever. The Museum reserves the right, at its sole discretion, to withhold and/or withdraw permission to photograph on its premises or to reproduce photographs of objects in its collection.

If you are interested in obtaining a publication-quality photograph of an object in our collection, either for publication or study purposes, please contact the Museum's Registration Department by e-mailing info@phxart.org. Members of the press should contact the Museum's Public Relations Department at (602) 257-2105.
